iPad size:

I did not create the mockup for this size because I decided to create it after I worked on the final Lab with three sizes. However, I created in my brain and listed things which I want to focus:

- 1) The header should be differ from smaller and bigger size
- 2) I can keep the same columns for the splash and welcomeMessage box as a bigger size.
- 3) I should have two columns for the group of three pictures with h3 and p sentences.
- 4) When I did (3), there was a blank space, so I felt a bit wasteful, so I came up with the idea that I can add something which can make people feel warm, encourage, or feel want to buy plants. I love hidden elements somewhere like video games have. It is a web page for shopping, not games, so it might not be good to do here, but I feel wanted to do so, so I tried it. I expect people may feel aww, pretty or something when they find it by resizing a laptop screen or something. I definitely love to imagine the moment while I am creating something.
- 5) For the footer, I can keep the same style as the bigger size.

After I created:

I feel so satisfied with this work. I did webpage simpler than assignment2 works because I need to create three sizes in responsive format. In assignment2, I had the problem that the children went over the parent box, and this made me so frustrated while I was creating, but in this assignment, I had less such problems, so I felt I got used to handling each box and the relationship between family and children.

Also, I did what I wanted to create like the mockup. Also, I enjoyed creating as well as I see I made a difference slightly by changing the size. Responsive web pages became one of my favorite concepts. I had never paid attention to that style because I did not compare the difference in iPhone and Mac screen.
